

Santander Private Banking appointments of a new Head - Investment International

Written by Santander

Tuesday, 13 September 2011 07:58

Santander Private Banking has announced that the bank has moved to strengthen its private banking business further with the appointments of a new Head of Private Banking Operations and new Head of Treasury.

Joining the bank is Simon Hayward, Head of Treasury and Doug MacKenzie, Head of Private Banking Operations. Simon will lead the treasury function and in particular will ensure the efficient operation of the foreign exchange and fixed deposit services. Doug will be responsible for delivering efficient operational support, running the key back office functions.

With Santander Private Banking now firmly focussed on the local Jersey market, reaction to the recently launched private banking range of services has been very positive with clients drawn to the idea of a personal service delivered locally, but backed by one of the largest private banking groups in the world with operations in Europe, Latin America and the USA.

Commenting on the recent appointments, Jane Matthews, Head of Marketing and Communications said, "Since our launch, we have seen a very high level of interest in the range of services we are able to offer Jersey residents who are attracted by the promise of a more open and transparent private banking service. Our strengthened team will allow us to grow further, whilst still maintaining our absolute commitment to the highest levels of service."

Santander Private Banking manages over €96 billion of client funds across 120 offices globally and employs 2350 professional staff worldwide